

What is claimed is:

1. A toothbrush comprising a head, a neck and a handle continuously formed in turn, characterized in that said handle is provided with a sucker portion.

5        2. A toothbrush as defined in claim 1, wherein said sucker portion is coaxially formed on the tip end of said handle opposite to the head, and the end of said sucker portion is formed to be open as a bell mouth.

10       3. A toothbrush as defined in claim 1 or 2, wherein said handle is provided integrally with an elastic material portion and said sucker portion is made of the same material as said elastic material portion and formed continuously with it.